

the hours are available, so shouldn't they exist today the herring are leaping beating the water

their small bodies and seals and seagulls and us watching or reaching toward their small bodies leaping the bay almost to ocean to light

I wouldn't wish this on you the waves aren't silver, they are gray telling you retold me and it was different this is an ache for what I already had